Overview of the policy and legislative framework

2008

2012

The Action Plan of the Government for 2008-2012³ seeks cooperation with foreign governments to ensure the rights of Mongolian nationals and their children residing abroad to receive education and live in a safe environment. It also aims to protect the legal interests of Mongolian nationals and legal persons abroad by creating a fund to assist Mongolian nationals and expand consular activities.

2016

2020

The Action Programme of the Government of Mongolia for 2016-2020⁴ aims to implement targeted policies for increasing cultural tourism, promoting Mongolian national culture abroad and produce relevant products and services. As part of its foreign policy, it seeks to consistently uphold the interests of Mongolian citizens and economic entities abroad as well as improve the conditions for citizens to travel abroad. It also seeks to increase the budget and accessibility of the Fund of Assistance to Mongolian citizens abroad to protect the legitimate rights and interests of citizens living and studying abroad, provide legal assistance in case of violation of their rights and improve the accessibility and quality of citizens' registration, notary and consular services. The programme also looks into supporting Mongolian schools and kindergartens established abroad by delivering books and learning materials to associations initiated by Mongolian citizens. The programme further aims to create enabling conditions for Mongolian citizens studying abroad in specialised fields to contribute to the country's development from abroad by connecting them to research institutions, universities, institutes and laboratories in Mongolia.

>> Trends

Mongolia has seen a steady growth in diaspora engagement initiatives since the government's 2008 action plan. The current action plan covers more diaspora engagement-related strategies than the 2008 version, which shows that diaspora engagement has become an increasingly important goal for the Mongolian government. Whilst the government used to focus on protecting and assisting its citizens abroad, it now seeks to mobilise the resources of its diaspora to boost infrastructure as well as use their expertise for science and technology. The government has also emphasised the promotion of Mongolian culture abroad. Over the past years, the government has partnered with cultural groups abroad to host national events like the Nadaam Festival through its embassies. Mongolian migrants are young, educated, skilled and in search of higher paying jobs and a better quality of life. Many go abroad to countries such as South Korea for higher education. There were more than 25,000 Mongolians studying abroad in 2019.⁵

Obstacles

- Lack of dedicated institutions: While the government has mentioned the diaspora in their action plan, there is no separate ministry or institution established to implement diaspora engagement objectives. This could hinder the implementation of some of their strategies.
- Lack of public infrastructure: Infrastructure challenges have been cited as a concern by members of the diaspora considering return. For example, 25 doctors who expressed interest in returning to Mongolia during the Beehive Conference shared that they hesitated because of challenges such as finding schools for their children and getting long-term work contracts.

The Beehive Programme⁶ 2011

The Beehive Programme was implemented to encourage Mongolians living abroad to return to their native land. A Beehive conference⁷ was held in Berlin in 2011, attended by 150 Mongolians from 17 European nations, with presentations about the economic situation in Mongolia and the country's need for highly educated professionals. Information was shared about 600 job openings in Mongolia for skilled workers. The 2016-2020 action programme also mentioned a continued implementation of the Beehive Programme to encourage and provide support to young people who have studied, worked, or mastered new technology and skills abroad to work permanently in their home country.

CULTURE

Returning Experts Programme 2004¹⁰

Run by the Centre for International Migration and Development (CIM), the programme supports individuals from developing, emergent and transition countries who live and work in Germany - or have completed education or training there - to return to their home country to use their skills and knowledge. It enables diaspora experts to contribute to development back home by applying their knowledge, experiences and contacts in the right places. The programme aims to promote international migration as a positive factor in development and to encourage the transfer of knowledge through the professional integration of returning experts. Since 2004, the programme has assisted more than 10,000 persons with career planning, returning to their home countries and the search for appropriate positions there. There is also extra financial support for experts returning to a list of 23 countries, including Mongolia.
