Emigration data comes from UNDESA (2024) and remittances from the World Bank (2024).

Overview of the policy and legislative framework

- 2012 ● Resolution D.G.M No. 1096: Since the adoption of this Resolution, if Paraguayans enter the country with a foreign passport and establish their Paraguayan nationality, they do not have to pay a fee.³ Prior to 2012, Paraguayans with multiple nationalities (born in Paraguay and naturalised elsewhere) had to pay a penalty when entering the country with another passport.
- 2015 ● Decree No. 4483 National Migration Policy (Decreto No. 4483 Política Nacional de Migraciones) is Paraguay's first official national migration policy. It decrees that government entities analyse challenges and opportunities for residents abroad, promote and assist Paraguayan communities formed abroad, facilitate international participation in the legislative process, implement mechanisms to canalize remittances and facilitate the circulation of remittances amongst other initiatives.⁴
- 2022 ● Law No. 6984 "On Migration", established Paraguay's new immigration regime. It defines the principles and guidelines of the public policies in this matter and introduces the recognition of rights and guarantees for migrants, in line with international legal instruments on human rights and migration issues. It is also in line with the recommendations of competent international organizations.⁵
- 2024 ● Law 7443/2024 regulates the right to vote for Paraguayans living in the national territory and abroad. It automatically registers citizens in the Permanent Civic Registry upon reaching 18 years of age to guarantee their right to vote regardless of their location.

This project was also financed by Australian Aid, which supports projects within the MIF's Remittances and Savings Program. The initiative aims to directly benefit 27,750 Paraguayan remittance recipients residing in Paraguay and remittance senders in two migrant communities in Spain.

This meeting provided a space for dialogue and reflection regarding the identity of diasporas and their connections with the home country.

Empowering The South American Diaspora As Agents For Sustainable Development

The objective of this project is to support governments (including Paraguay) to contribute to the empowerment of the South American diaspora as actors in the sustainable development of the region, especially in the context of the response to the COVID-19 pandemic.

The project foresees two main outcomes:

- The governments and other actors in the participating countries share lessons learned and good practices in relation to diaspora engagement;
- Men and women of the South American diaspora actively engage in opportunities to contribute to the well-being of communities in the region.

As of 2025, a working group is being developed and initial expansion will include the United States and Spain.

Observations

The “Observations” and “Obstacles” sections contain additional information on the context of diaspora engagement that does not fit directly into the other sections. They are based on a combination of literature review and comments from the authors. New information is incorporated during the annual updates. Readers are invited to verify the relevance of the information at the time of reading, as the context may have evolved.

Paraguay has been a late comer in terms of diaspora engagement. However, it is seeking to find ways to work with its diaspora. The creation of specialised government units such as the General Migration Unit and the Unit Focused on Paraguayan Communities Living Abroad provides ample opportunity to create innovative and effective methods to engage the diaspora abroad such as through diaspora working groups for investment and the economic development of Paraguay. As in other countries, however, while the state seeks to establish communication channels and discuss development policy initiatives, there is a substantive vacuum as to the precision and purpose of those initiatives.

Obstacles

- Outdated legislation: In 2016, the General Migration Unit (Dirección General de Migraciones) along with the International Organization for Migration (IOM) and representatives of the Federation for Immigrants in Paraguay (FEDIPAR), introduced a new law for migration. This proposed new law sought to move beyond what is included in the current General Migration Law No. 978/96 and apply policies mentioned in the National Migration Policy. Specifically, the proposal aimed to expand consular presence in more countries.⁶ However, this legislation has not passed, and Paraguay continues to operate under the General Migration Law. No. 978/96 which is over 20 years old. Such outdated legislation which does not account for current challenges creates obstacles to diaspora engagement.
- Limited scope of dual nationality: Paraguay's current policy on dual nationality, states that Paraguayans can only be dual nationals of countries which have international treaties permitting them to be so. As of January 14, 2020, Paraguay only has such treaties with Italy and Spain. This is effectively a barrier to Paraguayans living in countries with which Paraguay has not signed such a treaty.
- Lack of cultural promotion: There is little effort by Paraguayan authorities abroad to promote, foster, and preserve cultural heritage among members of the diaspora. None of the services provided by the DACPE, at least according to their web page, includes services which foster or promote cultural strengthening. Rather, many of the services offered by the DACPE relate to the repatriation or immediate security of the diaspora.⁷
