Terminology: The Republic of the Congo refers to its diaspora as 'Congolais de l'extérieur', but also uses the term diaspora in some contexts.

Congo does not have a diaspora engagement policy.

¹ Loi n° 35-1961 du 20 juin 1961 portant le Code de la nationalité congolaise sets out citizenship of the Republic of Congo, which does not permit dual citizenship. Full text available at: <https://www.refworld.org/docid/3ae6b4db4.html>

² Loi n°9-2001 du 10 décembre 2001 portant loi électorale sets out that any Congolese citizen abroad may vote in elections if they are registered on the electoral register. Overview of the policy and legislative framework

There is a paucity of official information from the government of the Republic of Congo on its migration policy frameworks.

- 2012 ● Poverty Reduction Strategy Paper 2012 (DISCERP 2012-2016)⁴ sets out a range of areas that are of relevance to diaspora engagement. These include the restructuring of diplomatic missions to attract foreign direct investment in addition to an easing of legal and tax constraints to benefit the diaspora to encourage their active involvement in the country's development⁵.

The plan further states that a comprehensive approach must include the integration of migration in development frameworks and strategies against poverty, and the involvement of diaspora and transnational networks in development strategies. There is also an acknowledgement of the need to improve management of remittances, along with comprehensive and targeted assistance programmes for labour-focused migration, facilitating the return and reintegration of migrants.⁶ It is not clear how these policy intentions have translated into formal migration and development policy frameworks.

» Trends

Relations between the government and its diaspora are very strained and characterised by deep mistrust. This has informed the slow development and implementation of diaspora engagement policies and programmes.

In 2013, the African Development Bank commissioned a consultant to develop a diaspora mobilisation strategy.⁷ In 2014 IOM supported the Republic of the Congo to develop a diaspora mobilisation strategy,⁸ and members of the Congolese diaspora were consulted on this.⁹ However, political instability in the country, and in particular the Constitutional Referendum and the 2016 elections, have hindered the Congolese government's progress on diaspora engagement.

The Congolese government is keen to strengthen the potential for diaspora skills transfer to support the country's development. Stemming 'brain drain' has been at the centre of diaspora engagement attempts. To this end, in October 2018, the Congolese government sent a delegation from the Department of Congolese Abroad (DCE) on a fact-finding mission to the Conseil de la communauté marocaine à l'étranger (CCME) in Rabat, Morocco. The purpose of this mission was "to benefit from Moroccan experience and expertise in the field of migration, especially in its organizational aspect," said HE M Jean Philippe Ngakosso, specifying that the newly created DCE needed the support of a country like Morocco "which has made a long journey in this field."¹⁰ These explorations build upon the policy aims outlined in the Growth, Employment, and Poverty Reduction Strategy Paper (2012-2016 DSCERP), which seeks to facilitate return migration and the effective engagement of the diaspora in the country's development.

Obstacles

- Lack of trust: Probably the largest obstacle to diaspora engagement is a lack of trust between the government and its diaspora. The government has viewed the diaspora as a threat to its political stability, while the diaspora is distrustful of the actions of the government.
- Frameworks: The Republic of the Congo has been slow to build its policy and institutional frameworks in relation to diaspora engagement; there is still no agreed upon diaspora policy, and while there are some initiatives, they risk being piecemeal and ineffective. Development and implementation of diaspora engagement policies and programmes are further hindered by deep divisions within the diaspora, which is largely perceived as being resolutely opposed to the Brazzaville government.¹¹
- Institutional focus on migration management: The Republic of the Congo has been affected by regional conflicts and instability and has had to manage significant numbers of migrants and refugees from neighbouring countries whilst at the same time seeking to stem outward migration and brain-drain from its own citizens. As a result, the government's focus has tended to be on border management rather than migration and development.
- Limited and informal remittance transfers: The majority of remittances is sent via informal transfer pathways, making the value difficult to quantify. Moreover, these remittances tend to be small amounts intended to provide for the basic needs of family members, rather than for business investment or development projects.¹²

SPOTLIGHT: Effective practices

Involvement of the diaspora in the elaboration of the National Strategy for the Development of the Digital Economy 2018-2022

Key actors and digital enthusiasts in Congo met in March 2018 in Brazzaville to validate the national strategy document for the development of the digital economy of the Republic of Congo. The strategy was developed with the aim of including the diaspora in the ICT sector in order help diversify the Congolese economy. The Ministry for Posts, Telecommunications and Digital Economy saved money by opting for a participatory approach that made it possible not only to develop local skills, but also to involve the Congolese diaspora in the process of drafting this strategy.¹³

DIGITAL

MIDA Congo-Brazzaville¹⁴

The main objective of the Migration for Development in Africa programme was to strengthen the capacity of the Government of the Republic of the Congo to mobilise the Congolese diaspora's skills for a beneficial contribution to the development of the country. MIDA aimed to respond to the challenges of human resource shortages facing Congo-Brazzaville in two priority sectors: health and higher education.

In order to achieve this objective, IOM undertook two parallel processes:

- Strengthening the capacity of the government in the mobilisation and management of the Congolese diaspora through its Cellule de Mobilisation de la Diaspora (Diaspora Mobilisation Unit) based at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, International Cooperation, and Congolese Abroad.
- Implementation of an effective mobilisation of the Congolese diaspora in France, in close collaboration with the Forum of International Solidarity Organisations for Migration (FORIM), to contribute to the development of health and higher education sectors in Congo-Brazzaville.

UNDP and PRATIC partnership to support digital technology an innovation

The United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) and the association PRATIC signed a memorandum of understanding on 17 April 2019 in Brazzaville to support Congolese start-ups and incubators through an innovation accelerator laboratory, in order to help the country achieve its Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs).¹⁵

- National institutions

- At ministerial level

Ministry of Foreign Affairs, International Cooperation and Congolese Abroad
<http://www.diplomatie.gouv.cg/en/ministry/>

The Minister for Foreign Affairs, Cooperation and Congolese Abroad implements policies in the areas of foreign affairs, cooperation and the Congolese abroad, with key aims relating to promoting the interests of Congolese abroad and managing labour migration.

A Ministry of Congolese Abroad was originally established in 2010. This was absorbed into the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, International Cooperation and Congolese Abroad in 2014.

- At sub-ministerial level

Department of Congolese Abroad <http://www.diplomatie.gouv.cg/ministere/le-secretariat-general/departement-des-congolais-de-letranger/>

The Département des Congolais de l'Étranger (DCE) was founded in 2011 and is headed by an Under-Secretary-General, who has the rank and prerogatives of a non-resident ambassador. The mandate of the DCE includes improving data collection relating to the skills and whereabouts of Congolese nationals living abroad, as well as identifying associations and organizations of Congolese abroad. It is also tasked with proposing strategies to encourage Congolese abroad to become involved in the national development process.

Diaspora organisations in Europe

Association Développement Relations Nord-Sud (ADRNS) France <http://www.adrns.org/>

Development activities

ADRNS aims to encourage and support organizations, public and private, French, African and foreign as well as individuals in the establishment, development, production, monitoring and evaluation of projects and programmes affecting the green economy, ecological agriculture, circular economy, the knowledge economy and the men and women of the diaspora.

Coordination d'appui aux projets de solidarité internationale pour le Congo (CAPCOS) France
<http://www.capcos.fr/index.html>

Development activities

CAPCOS is an association based in Paris which brings together more than 25 French international solidarity associations and organisations of migrants from Congo Brazzaville as well as individuals contributing to actions in support of the populations of Congo Brazzaville. CAPCOS provides a platform for pooling resources and skills between member organisations and works to create synergies between member organisations in order to strengthen a network of expertise, skills and know-how in the development and implementation of international solidarity projects.

Diaspora Congo Brazzaville (DCB)¹⁶ France

Development activities

DCB is a non-profit, politically neutral association, wishing to federate Congolese abroad, wherever they are, in a dynamic that transcends all cleavages (regional, political, confessional, social...) with the aim to develop and optimise the capital represented by Congolese abroad as a lever for solidarity and development.

DCB has set up a programme for the development of family agro-pastoral farms. The project aims to raise awareness of the work of small farmers, which lacks recognition,¹⁷ as well as reduce poverty in rural areas, offering sustainable activities for the development of family agricultural production centred mainly on breeding, fishing and farming. Before the launch of the project, members of the Congolese diaspora met with the Minister of Agriculture and Livestock, Rigobert Maboundou, to present the project and get the government's support in implementing it.¹⁸

PRATIC (Promotion and reflection, around Information and Communication Technologies) France 2008
<https://www.facebook.com/pratic.congo> <https://twitter.com/pratic242?lang=en>

Development activities

The association was established in Paris with the ambition to establish a global reflection around ICT between experts, professionals, students and users of ICT in Congo in order to collect concrete proposals and bring applicable solutions for the development of ICT from different actors (State and civil society).¹⁹ The PRATIC association has organised several symposia and 'reflection days' in France and Congo on the digital economy and its potential.²⁰
