As diaspora definitions vary widely, we have chosen to use comparable data on emigration as a proxy. This does not include all who consider themselves diaspora and is not necessarily aligned with national definitions of diaspora. Emigration data comes from UNDESA (2024) and remittances from the World Bank (2023).

Overview of the policy and legislative framework

- 1975 ● Law 75-33 states that the rights of Senegalese migrant workers in France are protected through a Convention on social security issues signed between Senegal and France on 5 March 1960 (renegotiated 29 March 1974 and through the law 75-33 of 3 March 1974).
- 2006 ● Sector Policy for Overseas Senegalese. Sector Policy for Overseas Senegalese (Lettre de politique sectorielle des Sénégalais de l'Extérieur) was published in 2006 by the Ministry of Senegalese Abroad and revised in 2011. Its objectives include: ensuring good management of migration flows; ensuring social, health, and legal protection of Senegalese residing abroad; promotion of Senegalese abroad; and reinforcing institutional support structures.
- 2012 ● National Strategy for Economic and Social Development 2013-2017 includes a number of priorities to stimulate economic cooperation, enable regional integration, and facilitate the participation of Senegalese abroad. These include developing a proactive economic diplomacy; deepening regional integration, removing impediments to the free movement of persons; and involvement of Senegalese abroad in national development efforts, by popularizing diaspora investment opportunities; and improving migration data management on the diaspora, as well as promoting the transfer of diaspora knowledge and know-how.⁴
- 2014 ● Plan Sénégal Emergent 2014-2035 (PSE) establishes the President of Senegal's development priorities.⁵ The plan includes the aim to boost economic cooperation, regional integration and the participation of Senegalese abroad, with the objective of "developing a proactive economic diplomacy" to better attract diaspora investments, tourism, and technology transfer.^{6,7} Based on the significant progress made and the sectoral needs identified by local players, the Government has drawn up a regional Priority Investment Program (PIP) (three-year period 2023-2025) in line with the Emerging Senegalese Plan (PSE). The PIP is structured around the sixteen orientations and decisions adopted by the Head of State, including support for the socio-economic and cultural initiatives of the region's Diaspora.⁸
- 2018 ● Draft National Migration Policy of Senegal (Politique nationale de migration du Sénégal, PNMS)⁹ comprises four strategic areas, the first of which - migration, migration management, economy and employment - includes objectives to enhance the potential contribution of the Senegalese diaspora to national development efforts. This document has yet to be formally adopted by the Senegalese government, and has been criticised for focussing on border management.¹⁰ Since its technical validation, there has been little information in regards to the adoption of the PNMS.
- 2024 ● Senegal Vision 2050 outlines the national transformation agenda of President Faye's government, guided by the ambition for "a sovereign, just, and prosperous nation, rooted in strong values". Vision 2050 is organised around four strategic axes: (1) A competitive economy; (2) Human capital and social equity; (3) Good governance and African engagement; (4) Sustainable planning and development. As the 15th region of Senegal, the diaspora is considered an active participant and beneficiary of the vision, as all Senegalese; it is specifically referenced in axis 2 for the potential to mobilise diaspora for the national transformation agenda, and under axis 4 as a source of investment.

6 Specifically, it seeks to achieve this through disseminating productive investment opportunities, supporting diaspora initiatives, ensuring protection and respect for their rights, and improving the management of data on migration.

7 The associated PSE Priority Action Plan (PAP) 2019-2023 notes that to achieve PSE's objectives, the support of various stakeholders will be required, including 'the dynamic contributions of the diaspora', although it gives no detail about how these will be harnessed. » Observations

The “Observations” and “Obstacles” sections contain additional information on the context of diaspora engagement that does not fit directly into the other sections. They are based on a combination of literature review and comments from the authors. New information is incorporated during the annual updates. Readers are invited to verify the relevance of the information at the time of reading, as the context may have evolved.

Senegal’s approach to diaspora engagement and management can be characterised as following three broad approaches.¹³ Firstly, the establishment of systems and institutions for the management and the monitoring of Senegalese abroad, the foremost of which is the Directorate for Senegalese Abroad (formerly the Direction Générale des Sénégalais de l’Extérieur (see Annex)), which has proved a regional leader in this regard.¹⁴ The second is to actively seek to engage the diaspora in Senegal’s economic development, especially through investment opportunities (see Spotlight). Lastly, it seeks to attract return migration from highly skilled Senegalese diaspora professionals.

Though diaspora has long held an important place in Senegalese policy, the 2024 change of government brought new impetus. This is most notable in the strategic decision to position the Direction des Sénégalais de l’Extérieur (DSE) as the coordinating body on diaspora engagement, to consolidate evidence and action in the field of diaspora engagement and act as the operational arm of the Secretary of State for Senegalese Abroad.

Achievements

Senegal has a proud record of enabling diaspora civic and political participation. In addition to diaspora overseas voting, the National Assembly dedicates 15 of its 165 parliamentary seats for Senegalese abroad.¹⁵

Senegal has sought to target its diaspora populations in Africa and the Global North through its policy frameworks. The country has developed an impressive array of structures to support diaspora engagement, and has had some successes in harnessing diaspora contributions at local level.

Obstacles

- Institutional capacities: The fact that migration is a domain shared across many different ministries and committees can be a source of confusion and inefficiency. Effective implementation of Senegal’s diaspora engagement policies is hindered by frequent personnel changes and the fluctuating human, financial and logistical resources allocated to diaspora engagement.
- Access to official information on diaspora policies is often quite limited. The DGSE’s page on the Ministry of Foreign Affairs currently lacks detailed information.

In order for these new MPs to be elected, eight new constituencies have been created: two in Europe, one in the Americas, one in Asia and the Middle East, and four others in North, West, Central and Southern Africa. See <http://www.assemblee-nationale.sn/deputes-de-l-hemicycle-1-all.xml> for more information

- Perceptions of approach to the diaspora: The perception amongst many in the diaspora is that the government's approach is one-way, designed to attract their funds and skills, rather than treat them as partners in national development. Although Senegal is one of the few countries to have established diaspora deputies in the National Assembly, progress is still needed to develop and implement policies that enable greater and balanced engagement across a wide spectrum of activities.
