Data disclaimer

As diaspora definitions vary widely, we have chosen to use comparable data on emigration as a proxy. This does not include all who consider themselves diaspora and is not necessarily aligned with national definitions of diaspora. Emigration data comes from UNDESA (2024) and remittances from the World Bank (2024).

1 However, since 2005, India has a program called Overseas Citizens of India (OCI) introduced by The Citizenship (Amendment) Act of 2005

2 UNDESA data is collected on the premise that international migrants are the number of people living in a country other than that of their citizenship. MEA emigration numbers include both NRI's and OCI holders. This distinction means that data from the MEA and UNDESA vary. According to the MEA, there are 32.1 million Indians abroad: http://mea.gov.in/images/attach/NRIs-and-PIOs_1.pdf.

3 Since 2010, an Indian citizen who is absent from his/her place of ordinary residence in India owing to employment, education or otherwise, and has not acquired citizenship of any other country, and who is not included in the electoral roll, is entitled to have his/her name registered in the electoral roll of the constituency of his/her residence in India (as mentioned in his/her passport). See: <https://ecisveep.nic.in/voters/overseas-voters/> and <https://www.nvsp.in>

4 Rankings presented here is on the basis of data available on the Indian Ministry of External Affairs website and covers both Non-Resident Indian (NRI) and Person of Indian Origin (PIO) currently present in the country.

Terminology: India uses the term diaspora as a generic term to describe the people who have migrated from its territories and their descendants. Indian diaspora fall into two categories for which specific data are collected.

The first category, Non-Resident Indians (NRI), refers to Indian citizens holding an Indian passport living and/or working in another country. To maintain one's NRI status, one must be in India for less than 182 days (during the relevant financial year)⁵.

The second category, Overseas Citizens of India (OCI), offers a privileged life-long status and continued relationship with India for those who have adopted another nationality and had to forfeit their Indian citizenship.⁶ Former NRI's and their families (spouses of foreign origin, child, grandchild, or a great grandchild of a citizen) are eligible if the person is not, or has never been, a citizen of Pakistan and/or Bangladesh. >> Observations

The “Observations” and “Obstacles” sections contain additional information on the context of diaspora engagement that does not fit directly into the other sections. They are based on a combination of literature review and comments from the authors. New information is incorporated during the annual updates. Readers are invited to verify the relevance of the information at the time of reading, as the context may have evolved.

Overseas Indians are the largest diaspora in the world and sent 82.2 billion USD$ (equalling approximately 3% of India’s GDP and forming a quarter of the country’s foreign reserves) in 2019 to India. Within the European context, most remittances are sent from the UK, Italy, and Ireland.

The Indian State and local officials are exhibiting greater awareness towards mobility (intra and inter-) and their diaspora communities worldwide. Political engagement between India and its diaspora is actively being sought after: the 2019 national elections saw heavy NRI participation in both the campaigning process and during the national election. The Indian diaspora also marked their strong presence in the 2024 India’s general election despite the requirement of returning to vote physically. They actively participated through campaign support, financial backing and advocacy. This massive diaspora-led election support across the globe once again signalled to Indian government to consider revising its external voting schemes.

The Government of India has put in place the necessary institutional support for NRIs and OCIs to maximise their global success in countries of destination, whilst embracing the diversity of contributions to their communities of origin. Increasingly, state authorities have established dedicated ministries and departments to manage migration. The state government of Kerala was the first state to realise the significance (and potential of emigration) for the state economy and therefore created a dedicated department in 1996 called the Non-Resident Keralite Affairs (NORKA). Similarly, the Andhra Pradesh Non-Resident Society was established in 2016. The government of Andhra Pradesh has also passed the AP Migrants’ Welfare Policy. Since then, many other state governments (e.g. Punjab) have come forward to develop a migration policy dedicated to capturing the potential benefits and minimising the risks of migration. Punjab state government took one step further in 2023 with the adoption of a diaspora policy.

The role of the Indian diaspora in the economic transformation of the country is growing. The government is taking concrete steps to strengthen this role. With the 'Make in India' sentiment in mind, the government is encouraging contributions to the Indian development story through investment in greenfield and brownfield projects, as well as portfolio investments. The government has facilitated the rules and regulations that have significantly improved Indian ranking in ease of doing business from 130 to 66 in 2020.

The Indian diaspora globally act as 'agents of change' facilitating and enhancing investment back home (reverse brain drain), accelerating industrial development, and boosting international trade. With a booming Indian economy, these agents of change have begun to return, contributing to the rapid urbanisation of India and the development of India's own Silicon City: Bangalore/Bengaluru and Gurgaon. Websites such as <https://backtoindia.com> have made the physical return home easier.
