Data disclaimer

As diaspora definitions vary widely, we have chosen to use comparable data on emigration as a proxy. This does not include all who consider themselves diaspora and is not necessarily aligned with national definitions of diaspora. Emigration data comes from UNDESA (2024) and remittances from the World Bank (2023).

Overview of the policy and legislative framework

- 2006 ● The Rural Development Strategy and Action Plan⁵ contains the following diaspora-related actions: inform Nigerien emigrants about investment opportunities in rural areas of Niger; increase remittances through signing conventions with financial stakeholders; and encourage interactions between migrants and local development actors. The strategy and action plan represents a relatively rare example of a government mainstreaming diaspora issues into a sectoral policy document.
- 2011 ● The Strategy for Development and Security in Sahel-Saharan Areas of Niger⁶ mentions the need to mobilise diaspora resources for local development, although it does not go into further detail about how these resources could be mobilised.
- 2022
2026 ● Economic and Social Development Plan (PDES).⁷ This Plan calls upon diaspora to leverage its know-how to support national development and generally encourage diaspora investment.

» Trends & achievements

Diaspora engagement began to gain traction on Niger's national agenda at the beginning of the twenty-first century, with the High Council of Nigeriens Abroad (HCNE) being established in 2003 as a quasi-state authority to manage state-diaspora relations.⁸

The diaspora is now also represented by five diaspora deputies (one per continent) in the National Assembly.⁹ During the last electoral process end of 2020 - early 2021, the diaspora could not take part because the census could not take place due to travel restrictions imposed by the covid-19. End of 2022, the Independent National Electoral Committee (CENI) organised a biometric census of diaspora in 15 countries in order to invite them to take part in mid-term legislative elections.¹⁰

At the same time, migration and diaspora issues have been referenced in development and security policies over the years. This is unsurprising given that in the main regions of origin for Nigerien migration, remittances have been previously estimated at between 25% and 50% of household income.¹¹ In this regard, efforts have also been made by the Ministry of Finance to facilitate the use of formal remittance transfer channels.¹² For instance, a project was developed to set-up "proximity counters" in major countries of destination in order to improve transfer services through cooperation with international banks.¹³

Niger has attracted increasing attention in recent years for its position as a major transit country for inter-regional migration flows, although a national migration policy – expected to include a section on diaspora engagement – has yet to be formally adopted.¹⁴

In practice, effectively implemented state-led activities that support diaspora engagement have been rare across the board.¹⁵ In recent years, diaspora communities, despite still being in the process of organising themselves given their relatively small size when compared with other West African diasporas (especially in the European context), have taken matters into their own hands. Nigeriens residing in France organised two forums in 2016 and 2019 in France,¹⁶ which attracted the state's ambassadorial support.

Currently, the government's diaspora objectives include establishing a framework to strengthen the protection of Nigeriens abroad and encourage their return to Niger.¹⁷ The government is also considering ways to strengthen the presence of the High Council of Nigeriens Abroad and to promote Nigerien culture and tourism internationally through its diaspora.¹⁸

In recent years, diaspora engagement has continued to grow, with Nigeriens abroad actively participating in national solidarity efforts. A notable example is their support for the Fonds de Solidarité pour la Sauvegarde de la Patrie (FSSP), established by ordinance in October 2023 to help address the challenges of the country's political transition. Since its creation, the diaspora has demonstrated strong commitment, with contributions totalling over 771.7 million FCFA.

Obstacles

- Data collection: The Nigerien government has a limited understanding of the size and characteristics of its diaspora.¹⁹ This may be due to weak data collection capacities in Niger, irregular migrants' fears of negative consequences for sharing their information with authorities, and nascent structuring of diaspora representations in countries of destination. The government is planning to work with the National Institute of Statistics and the High Council of Nigeriens Abroad to strengthen diaspora data collection.²⁰
- Dissemination of information: The development of a structure for Nigerien diaspora representations has been a relatively slow process – especially in Europe where migration is relatively recent and the Nigerien diaspora is smaller than those of other West African communities.²¹ This can constrain the government's outreach to the diaspora and the reach of its engagement initiatives.
- Right to vote: Niger's allowance of dual citizenship from 2014 effectively extended the right to vote in all national elections to Nigeriens abroad – a major step forwards for their full political participation. However, the 2016 elections revealed some teething problems with the exercise of this newly-won right. Some attributed these to a lack of consultation between the state and the diaspora regarding the implications of voting rights, as well as a lack of understanding about the locations of these new electoral constituents. In addition, there is speculation that the diaspora will not be able to vote in the next elections – ostensibly due to the COVID-19 pandemic preventing diaspora voter enrolment.²²
- Scepticism of diaspora capital: while Nigerien diaspora communities have been little impacted by the forms of internal ethnic strife that afflict many of its neighbouring countries, Niger's experiences implementing the TOKTEN programme highlighted opposition among domestic institutions to repatriating diaspora talent.²³
- Political unrest: In July 2023, a group of army officers overthrew the government of Niger. A few days later, Ecowas announced a series of sanctions against Niger. This situation limits diaspora engagement options, even though the group currently leading the country came up with creative solutions to attract diaspora finances.

Diaspora-initiated forums

NETWORKING + PARTNERSHIPS

While diaspora forums have been initiated by a number of African governments, Niger's diaspora has demonstrated that such initiatives can be diaspora-led. For instance, although the state organised a diaspora forum in 2012, the Nigerien diaspora in France arranged diaspora meetings ("rencontres") in Europe in 2016 and 2019.²⁴ Both were strategically organised in the city of Lille to facilitate access to Nigeriens in France and the UK, Belgium and the Netherlands. The meetings serve as an interesting example of the diaspora initiating forums themselves before engaging state representatives (the Delegate-Minister for Nigeriens Abroad chaired the 2019 meeting, for instance).²⁵

Diaspora media

NETWORKING + PARTNERSHIPS

Nigerdiaspora.net is an online platform by the diaspora and for the diaspora, administered from Brussels. It aims to serve as a virtual space bringing together Nigerien communities across the world by providing information and facilitating dialogue. The platform is regularly updated and provides quality news reporting on a wide range of themes, while also running special features, such as the "Nigerien of the week" (Nigérien de la semaine), which recognises diaspora talent.²⁶ The platform has achieved a strong following, with its Facebook page attracting more than 40,000 followers.²⁷

HUMAN CAPITAL

Financed by the Swiss Cooperation. This project aims to improve the living conditions of migrants in Niger as well as to enhance diaspora contribution in the regions of Dosso, Tahoua and Tillabéri. It will develop capacities of both institutions and civil society organisations.

Transfer of diaspora competencies

SOCIO-ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

In 2007,²⁸ the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) established a Transfer of Knowledge through Expatriate Nationals (TOKTEN) programme²⁹ in Niger as part of a long-running global United Nations programme established in many countries since the 1970s. As in other countries, TOKTEN Niger identified diaspora talent and attempted to engage them in their country of origin.³⁰ As part of the programme, Nigerien institutions selected diaspora experts whom they wished to work with. The programme then covered the experts' travel expenses and living costs for short missions.³¹ TOKTEN Niger began with a focus on the education sector.³²

Inter-ministerial committee on migration policy development, 2007

The committee was established in 2007 and placed under the authority of the Ministry of Interior.³³ It is composed of officials from the main ministries involved in migration management. International organisations and representatives from civil society are also invited to participate. In 2014, it developed the first draft National Migration Policy, although the document is yet to be formally adopted by the government.³⁴ The committee comprises various sub-committees, including a sub-committee on migration and development which discusses diaspora-related matters and is chaired by the foreign ministry's Directorate of Nigeriens Abroad.³⁵

Directorate for Nigeriens Abroad (DNE)

The DNE of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Cooperation, African Integration and Nigeriens Abroad is the main directorate responsible for state-led diaspora engagement. The DNE is led at the political level by a Delegate-Minister for Nigeriens Abroad. The directorate also houses the Reception and Orientation Office for Nigeriens Abroad (Bureau d'Accueil et d'Orientation des Nigériens à l'Extérieur), which serves Nigeriens abroad seeking information, advice and orientation services on engagement opportunities, especially on investment and return.³⁶

High Council of Nigeriens Abroad (HCNE), 2003

The HCNE, under the tutelage Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Cooperation, African Integration and Nigeriens Abroad, was established to facilitate state-diaspora exchanges and better structure diaspora representation.³⁷ The HCNE has opened offices (or "sections") in countries of destination.³⁸ The HCNE has a Permanent Secretary attached to the foreign ministry who, along with other foreign ministry officials, can be dispatched abroad to help Nigeriens in need of assistance.³⁹ 52 offices of the HCNE have been created.

National Agency for the Promotion of Employment (ANPE)

The ANPE, which comes under the Ministry of Employment, Labour and Social Security, serves as an intermediary between employers and Nigerien jobseekers for employment on the international labour market.⁴⁰ It delivers work authorisations to foreign workers and implements measures to facilitate the transfer of remittances.⁴¹ Although the ANPE is responsible for the placement of Nigerien workers abroad, its capacities in this regard are considered limited.⁴²

Diaspora organisations in Europe

Although the High Council of Nigeriens Abroad has established “sections” in several European countries, including France and Belgium,⁴³ overall there are relatively few Nigerien diaspora organisations across Europe. Organisations appear to be concentrated in France – unsurprising given the country’s position as Nigeriens’ preferred European country of destination.
