Data disclaimer

As diaspora definitions vary widely, we have chosen to use comparable data on emigration as a proxy. This does not include all who consider themselves diaspora and is not necessarily aligned with national definitions of diaspora. Emigration data comes from UNDESA (2024) and remittances from the World Bank (2024).

Overview of the policy and legislative framework

- 1974 ● Ley General de Población provides that the Secretariat of Interior (ES: “Secretaría de Gobernación”) oversees the necessary actions for the attention and reintegration of Mexican returnees, especially regarding essential utilities such as water and electricity and employment opportunities.
- 1998 ● Ley de Nacionalidad recognizes Mexican citizenship for those born abroad regardless of time, as long as they are children of a Mexican father or mother. It also provides there is no cause for Mexican citizenship lost.
- 2018 ● Nueva Política Migratoria del Gobierno de México 2018-2024 (EN: New Migration Policy of the Government of Mexico) refers to strengthening the presence and protection of Mexicans abroad, as well as referring to the integration and reintegration of migrants and the sustainable development of migrant communities.
- 2022 ● Action Plan 2022-2024 for Mexican Communities Residing Abroad. It contains 37 substantive actions, including: the publication of guidelines for the provision of consular services that provide certainty and clarity on the criteria applied by consulates for the issuance of documents, the publication of a manual on inclusive consular services, and improved access to Civil Registry services. The plan also seeks to strengthen existing programmes offered by the Mexican government.
- 2025 ● Sectoral Programme of External Relations (PSRE) 2025-2030. The programme aims to ensure timely and effective access to consular services and legal protection for Mexicans residing abroad, as well as to strengthen diaspora communities abroad. These objectives are aligned with the National Development Plan 2025-2030, specifically Strategy 1.7.1. The sectoral programme prioritises the reinforcement of access to consular protection, documentation and legal assistance in a context of rising anti-immigrant rhetoric in key countries of residence, such as the USA. For repatriated individuals, the policy also aims to provide assistance in healthcare, education and decent employment.

Tres por Uno (3x1) investment matching program 2002

3x1 is a public programmes in which every $1 contributed by diaspora associations, is matched by the federal and state governments. This money is gathered in a fund that is then used to invest in local development, with investment decisions made by local residents and contributing emigrants. From the government perspective, this allows them to provide public goods with partial funding from privates residing abroad, whilst the local communities play an active role in the investment decisions.⁷

Red Global MX 2005

Previously known as Red de Talentos Mexicanos, Red Global MX is an independent network with strong ties to the Mexican government and non-government institutions, which attempts to leverage the resources of its highly qualified diaspora to help Mexico develop a knowledge-driven economy. One of its achievements is the “SinLímites” initiative, coordinated by the Math2Me and the Red Global MX, which promotes the recreational use of mathematics and their mass distribution by virtual channels.

Vivienda para Mexicanos en el Exterior 2016

The “Your Housing in Mexico” (“Tu Vivienda en México”) program is the result of a collaborative effort between the Mexican government through the National Housing Commission (CONAVI) and the Institute of Mexicans Abroad (IME), and with private mortgages and housing developers, to encourage and promote the acquisition of housing in Mexico among the Mexicans abroad. The program allows the purchase of a new or used home through mortgage credit, making credit payments from the place of residence of the client. The IME has supported this program through a dissemination campaign in the Consulates of Mexico in the United States and Canada. “Built in your Homeland” (“Construye en tu Tierra”) is also a programme developed by the IME along with the CONAVI, to encourage and promote the building of housing in Mexico, through credit and providing a grant for the construction of houses.

Financial Education Week ongoing (2020 was the 12th edition)

This campaign promoted by the Mexican government offers Mexicans in the US information and services to strengthen their financial literacy and enhance financial inclusion, through strategic alliances with actors in Mexico and the United States. In 2017, it engaged over 70,000 people. It offers orientation workshops on access to financial services, business development and basic skills for personal and family finance management.

Programa de Educación Financiera para Migrantes Mexicanos 2019

The Institute of Mexicans Abroad has developed financial education programs aimed at the Mexican community; it is promoted through the Consular Network with the collaboration of various financial actors. They promote financial education of Mexican migrants through courses, workshops and distribution of information in Spanish. They also promote programs and resources offered by other organizations in the United States and Mexico, including an annual event.

Ventanilla de Salud 2002

The Mexican consulates offer information health services through 51 outlets based at the consular offices to provide information and education related health services.

Consular Entrepreneurship Programme for Mexican Women Abroad 2021-2024

The Consular Entrepreneurship Programme for Mexican Women Abroad (PCEME) is an initiative supported by the Government of Mexico, through the IME. Its purpose is to train and provide tools to women entrepreneurs of Mexican origin living abroad. It consists of four stages, including DreamBuilder, a mentoring programme, business plan development and financial analysis, with the aim of fostering financial autonomy and business empowerment. Since its inception, it has benefited more than 1,100 women, highlighting its significant impact on business development and recognition of their capabilities. Currently, it is implementing its fourth edition with the participation of 39 Representations.

Mexican Diaspora Literature Contest 2022

The Literature Contest for the Mexican Diaspora, “Tradiciones Mexicanas”, was created in 2022 as an initiative of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs (SRE) with the aim of promoting literary creation among Mexican migrants abroad. This contest, which includes categories of Narrative, Poetry and Children's Stories, aims for participants to express in their unpublished works their feelings and values about Mexican traditions, reflecting the foreign identity of the diaspora. In addition, the contest seeks to showcase the works of writers from the Mexican diaspora, to connect the community through literature, to reflect on traditions and bicultural identity, and to raise awareness through the literary expression of the migrant community. Its second edition was organised in 2023.

Remesa Paisano 2023

The "Remesa Paisano" programme is an initiative of the Financiera del Bienestar, promoted by the Mexican Ministry of Finance. The main objective of the programme is to facilitate access to financial services to the diaspora in the United States, especially those located in towns with less than 50,000 inhabitants. Through a debit card and a network of more than 1,700 branches in more than 50 per cent of the country's municipalities, beneficiaries can collect their remittances in cash, without commission, even in municipalities with no banking presence and considered to be highly marginalised.

Cultural Immersion and Volunteering Programme 2023

The Cultural Immersion and Volunteer Programme (CIVP) is an initiative that offers young students of Mexican descent (second, third or fourth generation) living in the United States the opportunity to immerse themselves in the cultural richness of Mexico over a period of three weeks. During this time, participants not only explore the most emblematic regions of different Mexican states, but also become actively involved in volunteer work in communities with an emphasis on migrant origins. The programme seeks to strengthen students' cultural ties with Mexico, allowing them to live authentic experiences, share with local communities and contribute positively through volunteer activities.

Sin Fronteras 2023

This programme of the Instituto del Fondo Nacional de la Vivienda para los Trabajadores (Infonavit) allows the Mexican diaspora in the United States to pay their mortgage loans from abroad by sending remittances through remittance companies with which Infonavit has established agreements. The initiative seeks to secure the patrimony of migrants' families, offering the possibility of paying both their own loans and those of relatives or acquaintances, without the need for additional procedures. In addition, Infonavit is responsible for covering the commissions that remittance companies demand for the transfer of funds, thus facilitating the process and strengthening economic ties between Mexico and the United States.

FINABIEN Paisan@ Card

The initiative aims to promote financial inclusion among the diaspora by providing a means for Mexicans living in the United States to send remittances via electronic transfers instead of cash deposits. The commission costs 2,99 USD – one of the lowest in the market – and a compensation mechanism implemented by FINABIEN will reimburse a 1% tax previously paid by migrants to the U.S. government for sending remittances. The card can be obtained free of charge online or in person at any of the 53 consulates of Mexico and requires only documentation (INE, consular registration, passport), a mobile number and an email address.

Matricula Consular

In the early 2000s, the Mexican Government promoted the issuing of their ‘matricula consular’ among its diaspora. The MC is an identification card issued by the government through consular offices to confirm that the carrier is a Mexican national. The consular identification card has become an important vehicle for Mexican migrants to obtain drivers’ licenses and open bank accounts, for example.

Vote abroad campaigns

Through the National Electoral Institute (“Instituto Nacional Electoral” [INE]), Mexico promotes and encourages the diaspora to vote and has developed some campaigns in order to facilitate the registration and voting of Mexicans abroad, including a website enabled for this purpose. INE implemented an online voting system that allowed eligible voters to cast their ballots remotely using a web application. Additionally, electronic voting kiosks were available at 23 embassies and consulates across the United States, Canada and Europe.

Access to health services access

Through the IME and in close collaboration with the Ministry of Health and the support of the Mexican consular network, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs has implemented several health initiatives to facilitate the access of Mexican migrants to primary and preventive health services, in addition to providing information, education and advice on health issues.

Engagement through sports organizations

Mexican-American sports clubs and associations have been a great support element for the activities organised by consulates, offering a recreation space for the Mexican community of all ages, where they can develop skills, motivate themselves to participate actively in tournaments and competitions and improve family life and links with the local community.

“ConsulApp Contigo” mobile application

As part of Mexico’s efforts to provide protection and consular assistance to the Mexican diaspora in an increasingly hostile environment in the United States, the application provides the following features: (1) direct dialing to the Information and Assistance Center for Mexican People (CIAM) with geographical tracking; (2) a consultation section that provides information about their rights in case of arrest or interaction with authorities; (3) notification of indicated emergency contacts in Mexico in the case of an urgent situation; and (4) a map of consular offices closest to the user to enable efficient in-person assistance.

» Observations

The “Observations” and “Obstacles” sections contain additional information on the context of diaspora engagement that does not fit directly into the other sections. They are based on a combination of literature review and comments from the authors. New information is incorporated during the annual updates. Readers are invited to verify the relevance of the information at the time of reading, as the context may have evolved.

Currently, Mexico is one of the most advanced countries in diaspora engagement. It gradually shifted from seeing its diaspora negatively to a new, positive perspective, during its democratic transition when then President Vicente Fox (2000-2006) referred to the diaspora as VIP, ‘Very Important Paisanos’. The creation of a special institute to formally engage Mexicans abroad, the Institute of Mexicans Abroad (ES: “Instituto de los Mexicanos en el Exterior (IME)”) is a worth mentioned milestone.

The Mexican government has a very comprehensive approach to its diaspora, both at federal and state level, as well as putting forward legislation to address return migration and transit migrants.⁸ It also has a few programmes to encourage the diaspora to return - permanently or not - such as the Paisano Guide (“Guía Paisano”), Housing for Mexicans Living Abroad (“Viviendas para Mexicanos en el Exterior”), and Build in your homeland (“Construye en tu Tierra”).

Offices at the sub-ministerial level have diversified their portfolios by adopting initiatives that facilitate their diasporas’ integration into host-country societies and participation in development activities at home. The Institute of Mexicans Abroad (“Instituto de los Mexicanos en el Exterior”), IME, concentrates its efforts on the contributions made by Mexicans abroad - both in their localities and in their communities of origin - through activities regarding both remittances and community development. It encourages diaspora organisations to join the consultative framework established by IME. The IME has formalised a long-standing Mexican government policy to gain the trust and support of an increasingly influential expatriate population who live mainly in the United States. IME’s website also provides information about remittances to Mexico.

The Mexican consular network plays an important role in strengthening the development and progress of the Mexican communities in which the community itself participates through its leaders, clubs and federations, Mexican migrant organizations, as well as local institutions and organizations.

It is important to note that 29 of the 32 states and the Mexico City have established state-level offices or ministries that address migrant or expatriate affairs and have a national coordinating secretariat. Moreover, in addition to federal legislation, most states in the Mexican federation have established their own legislation over the past 15 years.

⁸ Many individual states have adopted laws on migration, considering the importance of their local migrants. States such as Sonora, Durango, and Hidalgo and the City of Mexico, have laws to protect and attend to migrants and their families.

Obstacles

- Measuring impact: It remains challenging to effectively measure the impact of the State's diaspora engagement, through its many, varied, initiatives over the past 20 years. There is a lack of suitable monitoring and evaluation data and tools.
- Shift in diaspora engagement priorities due to external pressures: The Mexican government has expressed concern over the increasingly hostile environment towards migrants in the United States and recent operations conducted by the Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) targeted towards migrants, including Mexicans. In 2025, the initiatives implemented by the government prioritised consular assistance and protection rather than diaspora engagement, in response to the Mexican community's most immediate needs.⁹
