Overview of the policy and legislative framework

- 2009 ● Visión de País 2010-2038 and Plan de Nación 2010-2022: The national development plan prioritises the issue of return and reintegration of migrants among those who left the country but were detained at US borders. The plan offers a commitment for decent employment opportunity to help reintegration upon return. The plan makes no mention of the importance of migrants and remittances for the country.
- 2013 ● Ley de Protección de los Hondureños Migrantes y sus Familias: This Act is a comprehensive legislation aimed at protecting migrants abroad. It promotes - among other things - the reduction of financial and other costs associated with remittances, and aims to strengthen the cultural, social and economic position of Honduran migrants. It creates the National Council to Protect Honduran Migrants and stipulates measures to coordinate among government agencies on issues of rights protection.
- 2015 ● Decree No. 15-2015: The decree aims to reform the Ley de Protección de los Hondureños Migrantes y sus Familias and establishes a relevant fund, Fondo de Solidaridad con el Migrante Hondureño (FSMH, 2017-2019). The last allocation for this fund was approved in 2019. The funds financed return migrant care centres, social and labour reintegration programmes, the strengthening of Honduran consulates, non-profit organisations and the “Centro Consular de Protección al Migrante Hondureño”. It also provided direct help to Hondurans for their voluntary return and, when requested by the consulates, helped Hondurans deprived of liberty, provided hospital and medical aid and assistance in death or illness due to natural catastrophes and also supported the repatriation of bodies in case families did not have financial resources. Depending on the case, aid applications were submitted to the Secretary of Foreign Affairs, the consulates or the Dirección General de Protección al Hondureño Migrante.
- 2016 ● Memorandum of understanding on labour cooperation: In 2016, Honduras signed several multilateral and bilateral agreements on migration, such as a Memorandum of Understanding on labour cooperation with Mexico, El Salvador and Guatemala. It also signed a Memorandum of Understanding with the United States of America to protect Honduran migrant workers against discriminatory practices.
- 2025 ● Executive Decree Number 25-2025: National Emergency Strategy for the Protection of Honduran Migrants: The decree aims to protect undocumented Honduran nationals, Honduran migrants in transit and returnees during an increasingly hostile climate against immigrants in the United States. Assistance provided includes legal guidance and representation, a 24/7 migrant hotline, psychological and medical care and consular protection and services. Upon return to Honduras, the decree also provides for integration assistance, including guidance from Migrant Assistance Centres, an arrival bonus of 2600 HNL, a food voucher worth 4000 HNL, seed capital of 26000 HNL for entrepreneurs, facilitation of credit and employment support.

Practices

Assisting returning migrants 2011

In 2011, the Asociación Hondureña de Instituciones Bancarias (AHIBA) initiated the “Friends of the Migrant Project”, a corporate social responsibility initiative which includes assistance on: awareness raising and education of migrants and their families on the proper use of remittances; encouraging saving practices; holding a semi-annual running event to raise funds for returned migrants with disabilities.

AHIBA and the Instituto Nacional de Formación Profesional (INFOP) of Honduras, signed a Cooperation Agreement in 2012, through which they offer training with an entrepreneurial approach to promote entrepreneurship to deportees. AHIBA's participation is considered strategic as financial inclusion strategy to help returnees, mainly in terms of access to housing and productive assets.³

is an entity operating on the basis of an agreement between the Scalabrinian Sisters Association/Catholic Church, the International Organization for Migration (IOM) and the Secretariat of Foreign Relations and International Cooperation of Honduras. Their main goal is to provide immediate assistance (food, lodging, transportation, and health) to returned migrants from the United States and to promote their full reintegration through technical training and relocation for new jobs. In 2019, more than 60,000 Hondurans benefited from this initiative, 14,000 of them were minors.⁴

Solidarity and Productive Remittances Programme 2010

The Programme, launched in 2010 and resumed in 2015 until end of 2017⁵ was an initiative supported by the United Nations Development Programme to support 17 community development projects.⁶⁷ These projects included diaspora cash donations to schools and community centres in the cities of Comayagua, La Paz e Intibucá that were matched by the government.

Programme Becas 20/20 2017

It encourages Honduran students to continue their studies abroad under the condition of returning to the country. In 2021 the programme was only supporting health students as a response to the COVID 19 pandemic.

HONDUFUTURO Labor Intermediation Program

The objective is to be the bridge between beneficiaries and companies and governmental and non-governmental organizations, as well as to provide our beneficiaries with the tools that will enable them to find the best job options in the country. The PIL seeks to support beneficiaries in their individual labor transition strategy that involves returning to the country after completing their graduate studies. The Credit-Scholarship Program also offers financing of up to $50,000 over two years and a scholarship of up to 50% to students pursuing graduate studies abroad.

2022 Hondureños y Hondureñas Conectadas

Launched by The Honduran Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the Ministry of Social Development (SEDESOL) and the International Organization for Migration (IOM) Honduras with the objective of improving the socioeconomic situation of the communities of origin of the diasporas established in the U.S., through 3 Consulates. The remittances sent by Hondurans from abroad also contribute to the creation of community development projects, proposed and developed by the communities themselves or municipalities' boards of trustees, in order to promote investment, employment opportunities and access to services. All this will contribute to the reduction of inequality gaps and the mitigation of the causal factors of poverty and irregular migration.

The courses 'Cuidado del adulto mayor y niñez en el hogar' and 'Curso universitario de informática para hondureños globales' were launched by the National Autonomous University of Honduras (UNAH) and officials from the Ministry of Foreign Affairs to support the Honduran diaspora living in Spain and the United States.

Same-day birth registration for Honduran dual citizens

Through its 13 consultates throughout the United States, the Honduran government has implemented direct birth registration procedures to facilitate dual citizenship for minors born to Honduran parents in the United States. Following the termination of the Temporary Protective Status (TPS) in September 2025, the initiative aims to expedite administrative processing – which previously exceeded seven months – and mitigate deportation risks associated with documentation deficits.

Honduran driver licence renewal services in Europe

For the first time, Honduras has offered Honduran driver licence renewal service in Europe. After Honduras and Spain signed a license homologation agreement, a team from the Honduran National Transport Authority (DNVT) travelled to Spain to renew expired Honduran driver's licenses on the spot. This initiative was executed from 22 October to mid-November 2024.

ResilienceRemit

Funded by the EU and implemented by the International Fund for Agricultural Development (IFAD), a new €4.26 million initiative was launched to facilitate the use of migrant remittances and diaspora investment to contribute to climate resilience in rural communities in Honduras. The investment aims to reduce the cost of sending remittances and facilitate access to financial services for recipients, including savings, credit and insurance. In addition, ResilientRemit will also promote digital literacy and inclusion, especially for women and youth within migrant communities, to improve their ability to manage remittances and climate-related risks.

>> Observations

The "Observations" and "Obstacles" sections contain additional information on the context of diaspora engagement that does not fit directly into the other sections. They are based on a combination of literature review and comments from the authors. New information is incorporated during the annual updates. Readers are invited to verify the relevance of the information at the time of reading, as the context may have evolved.

The country has started to recognize prominent Hondurans in arts, entrepreneurship, international business and social enterprise. However, when it comes to science diasporas, there is no official or centralised database built by any public institution even though they have shown willingness to transfer knowledge back to their country of origin.⁸

Parallel to diaspora engagement efforts, the government is also expanding its consular network to address significant demographic shifts. In response to community lobbying, Honduras approved the opening of a new Vice-Consulate in Girona, Spain.⁹ Girona and surrounding Catalonia have seen a surge in Honduran residents. Over 7,300 Hondurans were officially registered in Girona city by late 2023, making them the largest foreign group in that area.

Obstacles

- Lack of data: There is a lack of information on and analysis of the characteristics and development potential of Hondurans living abroad and statistics on the impact of remittances.¹⁰ With the foundation of the Observatorio Consular y Migratorio de Honduras (CONMIGHO) in 2015, the government has made a significant advance in statistical registration and helped close the gap. However, they still argue for the need to collect better information.
- Resource limitations: Due to their institutional and financial weaknesses, diaspora organisations lack resources (financial and organisational) and knowhow. Much diaspora-led work is run on donations and focuses on cultural and social activities, but there is no coordination structure. As a result, the government does not have a structured way to engage with these organisations.
- Lack of programmes to build ties with the diaspora: There are no formal programmes to build or preserve ties with the Honduran diaspora.¹¹ Efforts were made through the Programa de Remesas Solidarias, but since 2017 there are no further developments.¹² A main reason is that Honduras prioritises the challenges posed by significant outmigration, choosing to focus on those returned or deported by the US government. Its policies addressing mainly outside pressures rather than sustainable diaspora engagement.
- Young diaspora history: The Honduran diaspora is overall weak due to its relatively recent development. Honduras migration is relatively new, mostly a phenomenon resulting from Hurricane Mitch in 1998 when a large out-migration wave occurred, growing at an annual rate of 7%. With the 2009 military coup and the global recession, a new wave later emerged, exploding in 2014 with thousands of unaccompanied minors leaving Honduras for the United States of America. Since migration is a relatively new trend, diaspora communities are less established and there is less of a collective diaspora identity than in other nations.
