Political rights

Dual citizenship¹

Right to vote in national elections for citizens residing abroad²

Barbados does not have a diaspora engagement policy.

¹ Barbados Citizenship Law, Chapter 186, The Constitution of Barbados (last amended in 2007) outlines the grounds for dual citizenship of Barbados. Dual citizenship is recognised and citizenship rights are conferred at birth to persons born abroad when at least one parent is a citizen of Barbados born in Barbados (Chapter II.5.1). The Barbados Constitutional Amendment Act 2000-18 enacted in 2000 extended the right to citizenship through descent to include not only fathers who are Bajan citizens born in Barbados, but also mothers. This amendment also provided citizenship rights to the spouses of female Barbadian citizens.

Overview of the policy and legislative framework

- 2007 ● National Strategic Plan 2006-2025³ incorporates diaspora engagement into two of its six strategic goals. As part of Goal 6, the plan sets out to engage the diaspora to promote the Barbados brand and model. Goal 5 indirectly involves the diaspora in strategies for strengthening Barbados' prosperity and competitiveness by suggesting the role citizens living abroad play in supporting the domestic market.

>> Trends

Recently, the government has taken a proactive stance in implementing foreign policy goals - such as attracting foreign investment - that engage the diaspora in the country's growth and development. It has moved beyond organising biennial conferences with the diaspora,⁴ to creating channels that institutionalise and facilitate diaspora engagement as a pillar of foreign investment strategies, specifically in sectors related to the blue and green economies.⁵

Actions that foster inter-generational national identity have also emerged, such as the 2020 homecoming campaign "We Gatherin'"⁶ (see Spotlight section) and legislative initiatives to confer citizenship by descent to second and third generations. The "We connect" initiative (see Spotlight) includes the launch of three diaspora promotion investment initiatives (Bajan Connect, Innovate Barbados, and Bloom) aimed at providing marketing, branding and access to business intelligence to prospective investors, including the diaspora.⁷

Connecting Barbadian exports with the diaspora:⁸ The government recognizes that it is important to differentiate demand behaviour among the diaspora. The size of the diaspora necessitates creative strategies that take full advantage of market demand to achieve profitability. Specific areas that still need improvement include awareness of products and brands, shipping and logistics, and identifying consumer demand in real-time.

Dual citizenship: Legislative advances indicate greater governmental awareness that fomenting the diaspora's national identity is key to engaging them for trade and development. In November 2019, the Home Ministry announced that modifications to the Immigration Bill would be introduced to Parliament in 2020, which would extend citizenship rights to second and third generation Barbadians.⁹

As of 2022, this amendment was still waiting to be submitted to Parliament for discussion.¹⁰

Right to vote abroad: Recently, the Bajan diaspora's right to vote has become a focal point of debate, as expressed in discussions with the Constitution Reform Commission and the Parliamentary Reform Commission. While some members of the Barbadian diaspora advocate for the right to participate in local elections and seek representation in Parliament, concerns have been raised by some who emphasise the potential risks associated with allowing overseas citizens to directly influence electoral decisions. The debate encompasses various aspects, including the potential impact on the electoral system, the desire for diaspora representation, and the need to balance these considerations in the ongoing constitutional reform discussions.¹¹

Achievements

Barbados has been successful in institutionalising diaspora engagement within a framework of social, economic, and cultural development. Government agencies have organised Biennial Diaspora Conferences between 2010 and 2016, and have involved the diaspora in annual business innovation conferences since at least 2016.

Obstacles

- Limitations to foreign investment: Investment from the diaspora is lower than government agencies would desire, despite a relatively favourable investment environment, compared to other neighbouring countries. Nevertheless, there are hindrances to investment and business ownership, including exchange rate controls that make assets expensive, public debt and a need for greater access to angel investment networks.¹²
- Inter-generational cultural heritage: Fostering a sense of cultural heritage among second and third generations of the diaspora has been a challenge for Barbados. Not only does it affect the possibility of sustaining traditions abroad into the future it also impacts the potential for export markets, investment, and support for development projects.

Barbados Network Programme 2010

2020 Year of the Diaspora and "We Gatherin'" homecoming campaign 2020

The government designated 2020 the "Year of the Diaspora", and the year-long, "We Gatherin'" homecoming campaign is its core initiative. The effort materializes the interest and commitment of the government to foster relationships with its communities living abroad. The premise is for Barbadians abroad to return to the island throughout 2020 in a celebration of culture and investment. The campaign seeks to cultivate relationships with Bajans abroad and mobilise their involvement in the country's economic development through contributions of time, expertise, and investment in enterprise and social causes.

Due to the Covid-19 pandemic, several of the onsite events were postponed. The campaign was later relaunched as "We Still Gatherin'" through a worldwide virtual meeting connecting Bajans abroad.¹⁴
